Introduction

It is a special pleasure for me, as President of The Association of the Bar of the City of New York and the City Bar Fund, to write the introduction to the new edition of Pro Bono Opportunities: A Guide for Lawyers in New York City, a joint effort of the City Bar Fund, Volunteers of Legal Service (VOLS) and Pro Bono Net. I hope that this guide will facilitate your efforts to find pro bono opportunities and to use your legal skills for the public good. As you know, New York's Code of Professional Responsibility makes clear that pro bono work is an "obligation." Many of the lawyers who do volunteer legal work report that it is one of the most satisfying experiences of their careers.

Whether you are a newly admitted attorney or have many years of practice behind you, there are many opportunities for you. This guide lists specific opportunities in bar associations, legal services and public interest organizations, court and government programs. Each listing provides information on areas of law covered, training provided and volunteer services needed. For the first time, we are coordinating our listings with the New York State Bar Association, and both organizations have agreed to a uniform format. We plan to use this information to create a statewide database so that attorneys could locate pro bono opportunities on-line by doing personalized searches.

As the City's economy worsens, the legal needs of the poor will increase while funding for legal services may decrease. Pro bono efforts are needed now more than ever. I urge you to devote some of your time to one or more of the organizations listed in this guide.

Many thanks to LexisNexis, which has provided generous financial support for this publication, and Davis Polk & Wardwell, for its assistance in the production of this guide.

E. Leo Milonas

President, The Association of the Bar of the City of New York and the Association of the Bar of the City of New York Fund, Inc.

Using This Guide

Pro Bono programs are listed under three sections: Pro Bono Opportunities with Bar Associations; Pro Bono Opportunities with Legal Services and Public Interest Organizations; and Pro Bono Opportunities with Court and Government Programs. Within each section, programs are listed alphabetically. Each program entry contains:

- a brief description of the program
- the contact person for volunteer lawyers
- the areas in which pro bono assistance is needed
- information concerning training and supervision
- information as to malpractice insurance coverage
- information as to available CLE credit

Following the program listings are an alphabetical index to the programs listed in this guide, an alphabetical listing of programs which use paralegal and/or law student volunteers and a subject index, designed to assist volunteer lawyers in identifying areas of interest. Any lawyer who would like further assistance in selecting a pro bono project in New York City should contact the CityBar Public Service Network by phone, (212) 382-4713, or by email, cpsn@abcny.org, or go to www.probono.net/ny.

Any lawyer interested in pro bono opportunities in other areas of New York State may contact the Department of Pro Bono Affairs at the New York State Bar Association by phone, (518) 487-5641, or by email, probono@nysba.org.

The City Bar Fund recruits, trains and mentors volunteer attorneys to provide advice and representation to indigent and low-income New Yorkers. Volunteers represent political asylum seekers; prepare wills and provide other legal assistance for the elderly; serve as guardians ad litem in housing court; represent cancer survivors in insurance disputes; represent immigrant victims of domestic violence; provide legal assistance to the homeless; advise microentrepreneurs; and provide assistance to individuals, families, and small businesses that were affected by the September 11th disaster. The City Bar Fund also offers matrimonial clinics where volunteer attorneys with matrimonial expertise provide legal advice to pro se clients.

The City Bar Fund's Public Service Network matches volunteer attorneys with legal and non-legal volunteer opportunities at nonprofit organizations. The Network works closely with attorneys and nonprofit organizations to make appropriate matches and develop projects that meet the interests and needs of both parties.

The Association's Monday Night Legal Advisory Workshop (LAW) addresses the public's need for basic legal information and assistance by having volunteer attorneys available at the Association on Monday evenings to provide information, assistance and materials to clients on housing, bankruptcy, employment, family, and consumer law issues.

The Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York (BBB) serves all five boroughs of New York City, Long Island and the Mid-Hudson region. One of the central, longstanding functions of the BBB has been to provide skilled, accessible dispute resolution services to the local consumer-business community. Such services encompass both mediation and arbitration. Through our well-established Attorney Pro Bono Mediation

Program, the BBB performs a substantial percentage of mediation utilizing skilled local attorneys as neutrals. While mediation opportunities are available throughout the year, arbitration training is more formalized and available less frequently; please contact the BBB for further details on the next scheduled arbitration training.

All mediation training is provided in-house by our professional dispute resolution staff. Formal procedural and basic ADR skills training (usually 2-3 sessions at the outset following orientation) is coupled with on-the-job mediation and feedback sessions. Caseloads will be adjusted according to the individual attorney's time commitment to the BBB, with a flexible schedule to accommodate last minute time conflicts. While prior dispute resolution experience is a plus, it is not mandatory for this pro bono opportunity.

The Civil Division's neighborhood offices and the Volunteer Division's Community Law Offices represent poor persons in civil matters such as: landlord/tenant; matrimonial; taxpayer controversies; family law; including adoptions, guardianships and custody proceedings; economic development; Article 78 proceedings; appeals; impact litigation; and administrative proceedings before the Social Security Administration, Department of

Social Services, Department of Labor and New York City Housing Authority.

Special projects focus on client groups with specialized legal problems, such as the elderly, persons with AIDS, homeless families, immigrants, battered spouses and the disabled, as well as community revitalization and issues relating to community-based organizations.

The Legal Aid Society is the attorney-of-record in most volunteer cases, and the volunteers, called "participating attorneys", serve of counsel. The participating attorneys assume primary responsibility for their cases, including court appearances, but receive one-to-one supervision by the Society attorney who previously screened the matter for legal merit and client financial eligibility. Training manuals, duplicate case files and sample papers are provided in every case. The Volunteer Division coordinates training sessions throughout the year, which are specially designed for pro bono lawyers who may be unfamiliar with some of the areas of law covered. The Volunteer Division's Community Law Offices has an uncontested matrimonial project, which uses volunteer paralegals to handle cases under staff attorney supervision.

New York Lawyers for the Public Interest (NYLPI), a not-for-profit law firm founded in 1976, provides a broad range of pro bono experiences to thousands of attorneys through our Pro Bono Clearinghouse. NYLPI's Pro Bono Clearinghouse matches hundreds of community-based organizations and non-profits working on behalf of underserved neighborhoods with attorneys qualified to meet their legal needs.

Every year NYLPI's 88 member firms and corporate law departments undertake a broad range of pro bono projects that assist the poor, strengthen communities and attack systemic problems. Assistance is provided in three areas: (1) Protecting the Disadvantaged (Litigation); (2) Building Communities & Institutions (Transactional); and (3) Partnership Projects. In addition to the opportunities presented by the clearinghouse, attorneys can pursue more tailored pro bono matters by working with NYLPI's in-house staff.

The mission of the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund (PRLDEF) is "to secure, promote and protect the civil and human rights of the Puerto Rican and wider Latino community." Three divisions, Legal, Policy and Education, carry out PRLDEF's core program areas- Civil & Human Rights, Civil Engagement & Empowerment, Civil Society & Culture and Equitable Educational Opportunities. PRLDEF's Democracy Project is including more Latinos in the effort to improve this nation's democracy. Other key programs include Project Ayuda, an emergency response program in aid of non-English speaking immigrants seeking assistance following the September 11th attack, built on PRLDEF's long-standing focus on language rights, including lack of access to government services. PRLDEF's Immigrant Workers' Rights Project has made advocacy for the immigrant worker community a priority. PRLDEF's Education Rights Project promotes equality of opportunity and the fair distribution of resources in public education for Latino students. Volunteer lawyers are needed in the following areas of law: civil rights, education rights, environmental justice, immigrant workers' rights, nonprofit organizations and public benefits.

lneugebauer@safehorizon.org

Safe Horizon's mission is to provide support, prevent violence and promote justice for victims of crime and abuse, their families, and communities. Safe Horizon serves approximately 350,000 New Yorkers each year through nearly 100 programs located throughout New York City, including the City's domestic violence hotline, domestic violence shelters, community offices, and programs in schools, courts and police precincts. Pro bono lawyers assist the organization's corporate lawyers, who handle the organization's legal matters, and its government affairs department, which advances the organization's legislative and public policy agendas.

Safe Horizon's Domestic Violence Law Project provides legal services for victims of domestic violence who cannot afford a private attorney. Practice areas include orders of protection, child custody and visitation, divorce, child and spousal support, child protective, criminal law, legislative and policy work, and community education. Mentoring is provided by staff and pro bono attorneys. Volunteers are required to take one case per year.

Safe Horizon's Immigration Law Project, located in Jackson Heights, counsels immigrants on obtaining legal status. The Immigration Law Project assists low-income and poor clients with services, including asylum, adjustment of status, Violence Against Women Act petitions, and family petitions.

Elderly Law Project: Oscar S. Straus, III, Director, ostrasus@volsprobono.org

Volunteers of Legal Service (VOLS) develops programs to provide free civil legal services to poor people living in New York City, and then recruits volunteer lawyers and law firms to undertake these services. Training and mentors are provided to volunteer lawyers.

VOLS has these pro bono programs: Legal assistance to elderly poor persons; a hospital-based project to assist children and their families on legal issues which impact on health outcomes; providing legal services to poor persons with HIV/AIDS in the area of life-time planning; counseling mothers in jail or prison on legal issues relating to child custody and visitation rights; and providing business-related legal services to microentrepreneurs.

VOLS works closely with Legal Services of New York City (LSNY), arranging for law firms to loan associates to work full-time for four-month periods at LSNY neighborhood offices, and matching firms with these offices to take cases on a continuing basis.

VOLS serves as an information and referral source for lawyers interested in doing pro bono work in New York City and works with law firms to develop or expand pro bono programs.

Thirty-six law firms have taken the VOLS Pledge to provide annually at least an average of 30 hours of qualifying pro bono work per attorney. Additional law firms are invited to take the VOLS Pledge.

For 32 years, the Welfare Law Center has worked with, and on behalf of, low-income people to ensure that adequate income support -- public funding provided on the basis of need -- is available, whenever and to the extent necessary, to meet basic needs and foster healthy human and family development.

The Center believes adequate income support is a critical element in any comprehensive strategy to reduce poverty, enable and encourage personal growth, and ensure that all can live with dignity. The Center uses its special expertise in cash income support programs to promote the creation, maintenance, strengthening and fair administration of such programs and, as appropriate, to address other publicly-supported means of improving low-income people's income. Volunteer lawyers are needed in the following areas: civil rights, health and public benefits.

The Appeals Bureau of the Queens County District Attorney's Office offers attorneys an opportunity to provide a valuable service to the people of Queens County and to the victims of serious crimes, while receiving in return a valuable and rewarding appellate experience. Under the Appeals Bureau's Pro Bono program, a participating attorney will be appointed a Special Assistant District Attorney and be assigned to work on a criminal appeal from a serious felony conviction. The volunteer attorney will be responsible for reviewing the trial transcript, researching the legal issues raised on appeal, writing the respondent's brief on behalf of the People, and arguing the appeal in the Appellate Division, Second Department. A senior Appeals Bureau assistant will provide the attorney with sample briefs and a style guide, answer any questions that the attorney may have while writing the brief, edit the brief, and prepare the attorney for oral argument by conducting a moot court before a panel of Appeals Bureau assistants. The program tries to the greatest extent possible to ensure that every participating attorney does, in fact, have an oral argument in the Appellate Division.

Prior criminal or appellate experience is useful, but not necessary.

The Court has the authority under 29 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(1) to request an attorney to represent any person unable to afford counsel in a civil matter. The Court recruits volunteers for its cases by sending its panel attorneys a monthly e-mail list of the available pro bono case opportunities. These cases, generally commenced pro se, are screened and selected for pro bono counsel by the assigned judge. Cases are generally in the following substantive areas: civil rights, employment discrimination, social security, cases against the United States or cases brought under the Court's diversity jurisdiction. Pro bono counsel may apply to the Court for reimbursement of costs.

Area Served: Kings, Queens, Richmond, Nassau and Suffolk counties

United States District Court for the Southern District of New York Pro Bono Panel

500 Pearl Street, Office 230
New York, NY 10007
(212) 805-0175

Contact for Volunteer Lawyers: Natalie Sobchak, Senior Staff Attorney, (212) 805-0175

The Southern District's Pro Bono Panel provides representation to formerly pro se litigants pursuing civil actions before the Court. Upon application to the Court, a judge may grant a litigant's request for pro bono counsel. Once an application for the appointment of counsel is granted, the Court solicits volunteers from the Pro Bono Panel to represent the particular litigant.

Volunteer attorneys are needed in the following areas of law: civil rights, employment discrimination, social security and other federal litigation. The Court's Employment Discrimination Pro Bono Mediation Panel provides limited representation to pro se litigants pursuing employment discrimination actions before the Court. If both parties consent to mediation, and with the Court's approval, a member of the panel will be assigned to represent the litigant solely for the purpose of the mediation. If the mediation is unsuccessful, the attorney is discharged and the litigant proceeds with the case pro se. Volunteer attorneys are needed with experience in employment law and mediation.
